Ceramics Instructor

Ceramicist Amy Booth holds a BFA in Ceramics from the California College of the Arts in Oakland and a Master's Degree in TESOL from New York University. After teaching English and ESL for over 20 years at CUNY, Barcelona, Spain, and Weber Middle School in Port Washington, she is now sharing her passion and skills as an artist and educator teaching wheel pottery at a local art studio, and The Manes Art Education Center at Nassau County Museum of Art

"Each pot I make is a part of me, and I am a part of each pot. I love the way my pots connect me with the people who use them. I think of my pots as my friends; they allow me to share a bit of beauty, a touch of comfort, a smile of pleasure, a sense of nature. For all of this, for each pot I throw, I am grateful." – Amy Booth
